

Nine Killed, 247 Injured In Brooklyn Pier Blast

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—A raging Brooklyn pier fire suddenly hit a mountain of explosive cargo today, touching off a towering blast of tremendous force. At least nine persons were killed and more than 200 injured.

The shock radiated 35 miles from the explosion. Windows were shattered as far away as five miles.

Three of the victims were boys—lured to death by the brilliant spectacle of black smoke laced with flames against a balmy, blue sky. The explosion killed them in their tracks.

Many of the injured also were spectators, unaware of impending peril as they watched the fire on the Luckenbach Steamship Co.'s Pier 37—at 1,800 feet the longest single-decked pier along New York's 350 miles of waterfront. It is on Gowanus Bay in southwest Brooklyn.

A mysterious telephone caller with a heavy male voice told the New York Times switchboard two hours in advance of the fire that "something big's going to happen on a Brooklyn pier this afternoon."

Men from the district attorney's office, the police force, the fire department and the FBI were investigating the call.

"They are investigating the possibility of sabotage," Fire Commissioner Edward J. Cavanagh told reporters.

The city estimated damage to piers alone at 10 million dollars. Around the harbor fringe of Brooklyn the additional damage was almost incalculable.

An oil tanker caught fire from the explosion but five other ships were towed to safety.

The blast knocked seven men off an eight-man crew off the city's fireboat "Firefighter." The lone man not hurled into the harbor kept the fireboat's pumps pouring water onto the blaze until his mates were rescued and replaced by other firemen.

A crew of 223 longshoremen worked on the pier during the day. Not all of them were still on shift when the fire broke out.

William Langusker, 51, a Brooklyn businessman, was watching the fire from the roof of the nearby Bush Terminal, a waterfront office center where hundreds work.

"All we could see was black smoke," he related, "when suddenly it turned into an inferno. A solid sheet of flame at least two city blocks wide and half as high as the Empire State Building roared up."

Chunks of white hot steel weighing as much as 50 pounds were catapulted from the pier by the force of the blast.

The fire broke out about 3 p.m., the explosion came half an hour later.

The fire department literally stripped Manhattan and Brooklyn of equipment to fight the inferno. It took four hours to bring it under control.

Flames

Long after dark, faithful flames still rose and fell near the end of the shattered pier as fireboats cascaded water into them.

The blaze apparently started near the end of the pier where it juts into the harbor. Checker Thomas Hendrick, 59, a retired police sergeant, saw it first in a pile of sisal—an inflammable hemp substance used to make twine.

As they swept along the dock, the flames engulfed a mountain of under-box cargo—paint, lacquer, rubber cement, chemicals and fuels. It was this inflammable mass that exploded.

The force of the detonation shook the towering masonry of Wall Street and the rest of downtown Manhattan across the harbor.

Pier Supt. Clarence Gunther said a man standing alongside him was decapitated.

All along the adjacent streets was a litter of smoking timbers and chunks of steel. The blast shook Brooklyn's massive federal building two miles away, and jarred rock-ribbed lower Manhattan.

Steel Pipe

A steel pipe crashed through the windshield of a parked police car.

The blaze hit with lightning swiftness among bales of sisal, a highly inflammable rope fiber, stored on the waterside end in the warehouse and pier.

An oil tanker tied up at the pier caught fire. Five other ships moored on adjacent wharfs were hastily towed to safety.

Fire Commissioner Edward J. Cavanagh, directing the fire-fighting efforts, was thrown to the ground. He said it was the worst explosion he had ever experienced.

Ambulances made a steady procession to and from the scene. Scores of people wandered about the streets with bandages on their heads or arms, apparently victims of shattered glass.

By dark, firemen said the blaze had been confined to the one big pier, operated by the Luckenbach Steamship Co., Inc.

Damage

Others nearby, however, suffered some damage from the blast.

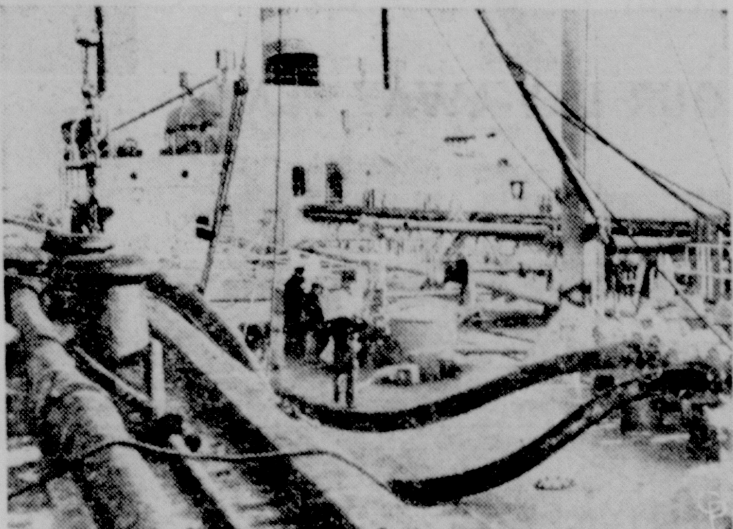

Danger of quick, extensive spreading is always a major threat in waterfront fires, this one centered in a vast chain of docks running along Brooklyn's shore.

A police detective, James Maloney, was near the pier at the time of the explosion. He said he saw six persons tossed into the air and "some of them were decapitated."

Later in the evening, however, the Times received a second call, presumably from the same person. The caller said the first call referred to crew dissatisfaction aboard a British ship, and had nothing to do with the fire.

The FBI and police, fire and district attorney's office officials, meanwhile, were checking on the possibility of sabotage.

Fire Commissioner Edward J. Cavanagh said there was something "very strange" about the blast, and added it was "not normal" for the type of cargo on the pier.

FIRST OIL TANKER to go from the Middle East by way of the long route around Cape Hope, Africa, arrives at a refinery on the Isle of Grain, England. The tanker Athina Livanos, with an all-Greek crew, carried 27,882 tons of crude oil. In the meantime, President Eisenhower ordered a massive emergency flow of oil to ease the critical shortage in Europe. U.S. officials said that at least 500,000 barrels a day will be in transit before Christmas.

Red Cross Stops Budapest Relief

VIENNA, Austria, Dec. 3 (AP)—Budapest radio announced tonight that the chief of the Hungarian Red Cross had ordered the distribution of food relief in Budapest stopped.

Dr. Gyorgy Killner, the chief, said he was seeking clarification of reports that "some of the aid is not being delivered on the basis of principles agreed on."

Dr. Killner, speaking over the radio, announced that "We do not consider it assured that the food is given to the needy in each case. We have found that storing and handling of food in several places is insufficient."

He added that many Hungarian Red Cross distribution organizations have proved inexperienced and badly directed.

New Setup

Dr. Killner said a new food distribution setup, using identification cards and filing systems, has been worked out.

Just before Dr. Killner's broadcast, the International Red Cross reported here today it had started to provide a free meal daily to 223,000 of Hungary's children.

In announcing details of one of the largest Red Cross aid measures since the World War II, Red Cross chief I. W. Meyer told a news conference some 500 tons of medical supplies, food, clothing and fuel are now being distributed in Hungary each week. This full program of aid, due to last for at least five months, has come into operation now that a sufficiently efficient relief distribution exists in the rebellion-torn country, Meyer said.

The Red Cross official said he was "completely satisfied" that all the aid sent into Hungary from the West "comes into the right hands."

Bomb Scare Grounds Three Airline Planes

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 3 (AP)—American Airlines planes were grounded and searched at three upstate airports tonight after an unknown caller warned company headquarters in New York City that a bomb was aboard one of them.

Authorities said the call was traced to a Rochester tavern.

Two flights were grounded at Rochester, and one each at Syracuse and Buffalo.

Authorities at all three airports said no bomb was found and all flights departed after being checked.

11 Hunters Die In State Woods

By The Associated Press

EIGHT hunters succumbed to heart attacks and three others died of accidental gun wounds inflicted as a result of roaming Pennsylvania's forests Monday on the opening of the two-week deer hunting season.

State Game Commission officials said near ideal weather and an abundance of deer in the Keystone State brought thousands of hunters out in quest of the antlered deer.

Charles Verbal, of Clearville R. D. 1, was shot to death when a gun accidentally discharged while being held by a woman deer hunter near the Pennsylvania-Maryland border.

Police

State police said Mrs. Floyd Swartzwelder, South Hampton Twp., was holding the gun when it went off as she was entering Verbal's car en route from hunting.

Robert Hembury, 16, of Sullivan County, was accidentally shot to death while hunting near Dushore. Police said Frank Barnatsky, 16, accidentally discharged his gun and the slug struck and killed Hembury. They were hunting together.

Samuel K. Thompson, 33, of West Middlesex, Mercer County, was accidentally shot to death while aiding another hunter who became ill in Elk County.

Reports Agree On Dorsey Death

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Dec. 3 (AP)—Coroner Edgar W. Krentzman said today a state toxicologist's report supported a medical examiner's finding that bandleader Tommy Dorsey died from accidental asphyxiation.

The report, filed by Dr. Abraham Stelman, said that Dorsey had taken nembutal, a barbiturate, but not in sufficient quantity "to constitute an overdose."

Supreme Court Stands By Rule On Integration

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The Supreme Court today stood by its ruling that local opposition to racial integration in public schools cannot be made the basis for delaying it.

It did so by rejecting a plea by the school board of Mansfield, Tex., for more time "to solve its problems and end segregation" in the high school there.

Rioting occurred at the opening of the school term last September when three Negroes, acting under a court order, sought admission. The appearance of Texas Rangers ended the disturbance, and attorneys for the Negroes announced they were abandoning, for the present, efforts to enroll Negro pupils.

Appeal

The school board appealed from a decision by the U.S. Court of Appeals in New Orleans ordering it to proceed with integration in the high school "completely uninfluenced by private and public opinion as to the desirability of desegregation in the community."

The appellate court said the only reason given by the board for refusing to admit Negroes to the school "was its concession to public opinion."

The Mansfield case is the first, in which local sentiment has figured importantly, to reach the Supreme Court since its ruling in May 1954 that public school segregation is unconstitutional.

Chief Justice Warren, in the high court's implementing decision a year later, commented: "It should go without saying that the vitality of these constitutional principles cannot be allowed to yield simply because of disagreement with them."

While the Supreme Court made no comment in throwing out the Mansfield board's appeal, the fact that it let the decision of the court of appeals stand undisturbed provides guidance to all lower federal courts whenever the question of local sentiment becomes an issue.

The New Orleans appellate court overturned a finding by a federal district court in Texas that the Mansfield school board had shown "it is making a good faith effort toward integration."

The appeals court said the district court should have declared Negro students have a right to attend the high school on the same basis as white students.

The case now goes back to district court by way of the court of appeals, a route which will take something like two months.

District Court

When it gets to district court, the judge is directed by the court of appeals "to make the declaration of Negro rights, to restrain the school board forever from refusing admission to qualified Negroes." The district court is also to retain jurisdiction of the case "for further orders at the foot of the decree to promptly, fully, and effectively carry out the mandate and the orders of the district court entered pursuant thereto."

Elsewhere on the segregation front, Alabama asked the Supreme Court to reconsider its Nov. 13 decision outlawing racial segregation on local buses.

John Patterson, Alabama's attorney general, contended the state's police power "has been wrongfully taken from it."

Also today, attorneys for Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, Cleveland osteopath, petitioned the court to reconsider its Nov. 13 refusal to review his trial and conviction for the slaying of his wife, Marilyn.

Sheppard, now serving a life sentence, contended in his original appeal that he was denied a fair trial because of adverse publicity.

Red Admits Cases Of Deportation

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Dec. 3 (AP)—A government spokesman admitted for the first time today that Hungarians had been deported to Russia by Soviet police—in "isolated cases."

But Istvan Szirmai, press chief for the Soviet-imposed Janos Kadar regime, declared deportations were stopped two weeks ago and those deported all had been returned to Hungary.

He denied fighting with rebels was continuing in Hungary, but conceded that "scattered armed bands" were still at large, that "criminals" still presented a security problem in Budapest and that a sullen Hungarian miners were digging only a third of the coal they produced before the revolution.

Others

Szirmai made these other comments:

Hungarian workers are not eager to restore Imre Nagy, former Premier who took refuge in the Yugoslav Embassy Nov. 4 when Soviet tanks began their all-out assault on the revolutionists. An authoritative source said yesterday Nagy is now in Sinala, a Romanian resort, but Szirmai said he had no idea of Nagy's exact whereabouts in Romania.

K. P. S. Menon, Indian ambassador to the Soviet Union, sent to report to Indian Prime Minister Nehru on the Hungarian situation, has arrived and probably has seen Kadar.

United States Halts Cultural Exchange Plan With Russia

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The United States, in protest against Soviet strong-arm tactics in Hungary, has suspended its new program of cultural exchanges with Russia.

State Department officials said President Eisenhower personally approved the move. They represented him as feeling that visits of Russian leaders here and Americans in Russia should not be resumed until the Soviet Union has demonstrated it believes in the right of neighboring countries to coexist under governments of their own choosing.

The State Department said the few exchange programs arranged with Soviet satellite nations would continue. Mainly these involve visits by representatives of the new Polish government.

In View

"In view of recent developments," the department said, "proposed governmental exchanges with the Soviet Union have been suspended during a reappraisal of the program."

The department's action suspended most of a 17-point program aimed at increasing friendly contacts with Russia. The program was begun last summer under a presidential directive issued June 29.

In line with Eisenhower's order, more than 100 Russians had been permitted to visit the United States this year, while a record 2,500 U. S. tourists were granted visas to visit the Soviet Union.

Russia has yet to be informed officially of the halt in the exchange program, officials said. All Soviet proposals for such visits will be ignored, they added, and no U. S. proposals will be initiated.

Interest In Banks Set At Three Percent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The government moved today to ease the tight money market by authorizing an increase in interest rates to 3 per cent on savings accounts and some time deposits and certificates.

The Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. made a joint announcement of the action. They said the purpose was two-fold: to encourage savings and at the same time make more money available for capital investment.

Date

Effective Jan. 1 interest on savings accounts in all insured commercial banks may be raised from 2½ to 3 per cent. The same increase was authorized for time deposits and certificates of more than six months duration.

The interest rate on time deposits and certificates running from 90 days to six months may be raised from 2 to 2½ per cent. There was no announced change in the maximum permissible rate of one per cent payable on time deposits and certificates of less than 90-day duration.

Changes Made In Highway Department

HARRISBURG, Dec. 3 (AP)—The state Highway Department today reshuffled district engineers involving four areas of the Commonwealth.

Harrisburg

Transferred from Hollidaysburg is Victor Leopold who becomes district engineer with headquarters at Harrisburg.

T. K. Rothermund, Harrisburg district engineer, goes to a similar job with headquarters at Allentown where E. J. Greenwald, after serving nearly a year as acting district engineer, steps back to assistant district engineer.

All of the salaries remain the same—in the $9,000-$10,000 bracket.

The department called the changes routine.

Flying Enterprise, Famous Captain Lick Fire On Dock

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—Capt. Kurt Carlsen, one of the great sea heroes of recent times, and the namesake of his famous ship, the Flying Enterprise, were supporting players today in the tragic drama of Brooklyn's dock fire and explosion.

When the explosion ripped the Brooklyn waterfront this afternoon, tied up at Pier 29 was the Flying Enterprise Number Two, Isbrandtsen Line ship which replaced the original vessel of that name that went down near England early in 1952.

Aboard with the rest of his crew was Carlsen, who won fame in 1952 for staying with his storm-wrecked and badly listing ship for a dozen days, alone most of the time until his mate returned to join the vigil in the ship's last days.

Flaming debris from the explosion on Pier 37 set afire the pier at which Carlsen's ship was tied. Ships all along the waterfront were being pulled away from their docks.

But the Flying Enterprise did not pull away for an hour and 10 minutes after the blast.

First she used her own fire-fighting equipment to put out the fire on Pier 29.

Ezio Pinza Suffers Second Heart Attack

GREENWICH, Conn., Dec. 3 (AP)—Singer Ezio Pinza, 64, suffered a heart attack today—his second in less than four months.

The basso's name was immediately placed on the critical list at Greenwich Hospital, but a spokesman said this was routine procedure in such cases. His condition was described as satisfactory.

The hospital spokesman said Pinza suffered a "coronary occlusion."

At Home

He was stricken in the dining room of his country home in nearby Stamford as he and his wife were about to sit down for lunch.

Fire department ambulance attendants who were summoned said they found Pinza lying on the floor. They said he was conscious at the time. Pinza's doctor who arrived at about the same time gave the Italian-born opera star a shot of adrenalin and the attendants administered oxygen.

The firemen said Pinza was under oxygen all the way to the hospital.

Mrs. Pinza arrived at the hospital a short time later to remain near her husband.

Only a short time ago, Pinza told reporters:

"It is my desire and my intention not to sing more." He said, however, he wanted to act in plays, movies or television shows with a nonsinging part.

He said his heart attack last August in Italy did not influence his decision to quit singing.

Ammonia Does Damage

HARRISBURG, Dec. 3 (AP)—The state Fish Commission today traced the source of wholesale fish deaths in Centre County to the general area of State College.

C. Robert Glover, chief of conservation education for the commission, said the offender has not been pinpointed although it has been established that ammonia killed the 175,000 fish on the weekend.

"We have definitely traced the ammonia to the State College area," he told a newsman.

He said it was still questionable whether the source was actually in the borough or in University Park, home of Pennsylvania State University.

Assembly Preparing New Resolution

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Dec. 3 (AP)—The Red Hungarian government bluntly repeated today its refusal to admit U. N. observers but unlocked its doors to receive Dag Hammarskjöld "at a later date appropriate for both parties."

U. S. Chief Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., told the U. N. Assembly this reply from Budapest to U. N. efforts to get observers and the secretary general into Hungary was not satisfactory. Hammarskjöld said nothing.

Lodge and 13 others are sponsoring a new resolution with a new demand for the admission of U. N. observers. He said Hammarskjöld must be allowed to go there soon and with freedom of action. He pointed out that the new resolution carried a Dec. 7 deadline for the Reds to agree to accept observers.

Lodge said the U. N. is confronted here "by a demonstration of complete contempt—complete contempt—for the provisions of the charter and a callous disregard for human decency."

Time Arrives

"The time has come," he said, "for one final appeal, but we must set a deadline—a terminal date—for their response. We cannot permit ourselves to be fobbed off, to be stalled. We cannot permit the General Assembly to be utterly disregarded. If we here feel sometimes that our patience is exhausted, just think of the ordeal of the workers and the peasants of Hungary whose courage alone sustained them. They have not submitted."

The Assembly halted its general policy speeches and took up the Hungarian situation again at the demands that observers be permitted to check whether Hungarians have been deported to the Soviet Union.

Communist speakers here have stoutly maintained the reports of deportations are "lies" but today, shortly after Lodge spoke, a Red spokesman in Budapest admitted there had been some deportations to the Soviet Ukraine. The spokesman said they had been returned, however.

Temper are wearing thin on the Hungarian question. If the deadline of Dec. 7 for the Soviet Union and Hungary to accept the U. N. demand to admit observers is not accepted, some delegates are talking about rejecting the credentials of the Hungarian delegation.

Soviet delegates, for their part, are equally bitter. In corridor talk, they point out no one demanded strong action against South Africa when that country persistently refused to admit a commission to study its racial policies. "Why Hungary?" they ask.

Service Pact Awarded For Flood Control

AN ENGINEERING service contract for the design of Unit Number One of the flood protection project in Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg has been awarded by the State Department of Forests and Waters.

This was disclosed yesterday by Secretary Maurice K. Goddard in a letter to Burgess Hal H. Harris of Stroudsburg.

The contract was awarded to Friday, Gauger, Truscott and Friday, Inc., of Philadelphia.

Dr. Goddard said, "It is our intention to begin design work on the proposed project immediately and to award a construction contract for Unit Number One in the late Spring or early Summer of 1957."

Brookheads

The proposed improvements of Brookheads Creek will consist, Dr. Goddard said, "of the construction of earth levees on both sides of Brookheads Creek from the approximate north borough limits of Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg downstream to a point below the confluence with McMichael's Creek."

"The levees, in all probability, will be extended up McMichael's Creek in the vicinity of the sewage treatment plant in order that the levee of Brookheads Creek will serve as an independent unit and provide the desired flood protection along Brookheads Creek."

"Pumping stations and drainage structures will be installed to handle interior drainage behind the levees," Dr. Goddard added.

The department estimated the cost of Unit Number One at $1,400,000. Dr. Goddard told Burgess Harris in an earlier conversation.

Bangor Drum, Bugle Corps Honored At Annual Banquet

BANGOR — Annual banquet of the drum and bugle corps of the E. H. Evans Post 378, American Legion, was held on Saturday night in Memorial Fire Hall, Stockertown, with more than 125 persons attending.

Chief Burgess Hayden B. Philchard, Bangor, was the guest speaker for the function, which marked the 30th anniversary of the Bangor corps and the close of one of its most successful years. Pertinent remarks were also offered by Ellsworth Palmer, commander of the 30th District of the Legion.

who, with his wife, were numbered among the honored guests.

Gifts were presented to Mrs. James Prime and Mrs. Edward Shive, wives of the director and assistant director, respectively, by Robert Bittenbender, a member of the committee on arrangements. Other members of the committee included Ray Weidlich, Anthony Ruggiero and Elmer Boyd.

Harry Riley, historian, reported that the corps participated in 19 parades, eight field competitions, and five exhibitions during the past

With harbituates back on the top shelf of the medicine chest after the over indulgences perpetrated round the Thanksgiving feasts and fetters; with the round and shapely basketball slowly gaining prominence over the pesky, oval, and, sometimes unwieldy, football; and with the breezes of Indian Summer being swept away by the snow shovel . . . we can turn thoughts toward the famous visit of a well known and ageless bearded gentleman who will make his way between rectangular brick openings later this month, and what preparations are in store for his arrival. Here at WVPO, we are already underway.

We might first let you know that, with the new month, come shorter hours. Because of a Federal Communications regulation many years ago, WVPO hours in December are confined to between 7:15 and 4:30. Early risers are reminded that Taylor won't get underway until 7:15. His December schedule: 7:15 to 8:00 and 8:35 to 9:00.

Now then, the holiday programs. "Letters To Santa" is already underway. The youngsters can hear their letters read Monday through Friday at 4:05 and on Saturday at 10:45. Might suggest to boys and girls they drop off their letters at Norton's Store in Stroudsburg. "Upper Room Stories of Christmas" starts on December 8 and runs through the 23. Show to be aired year. It was noted also that the corps took nine first prizes and ladies auxiliary, made a $300 donation to the new uniform fund of the corps at the dinner. William F. Jory acted as the toastmaster of ceremonies.

Army Of Hunters Invade Pocono Mountains Woods, Fields

Kill Reported High On Opening Day

AN ARMY of deer hunters fanned through the wooded areas of Monroe, Pike and Wayne counties yesterday as Pennsylvania's two-week buck season got underway at 7 a.m.

The hunters included every age group of both sexes. Fathers and sons teamed up for a day in the field. And not a few ladies joined their husbands in hopes of bagging a buck before their mates.

Last night, District Game Protectors John Spencer, of Mount Pocono, and John Doebeling, of Stroudsburg, reported that about the same number of deer were killed yesterday as on the opening day of the 1955 season.

Spencer also disclosed that about 20 percent less hunters were in the wooded areas of his district yesterday. However, Doebeling reported more hunters in his area this year.

The game protector further reported that four coyotes were bagged in his district yesterday. Dave Bisbing, Mount Pocono, brought down a 35-pound female in the Mount Pocono area, and another was shot by Bill Dailey, of Tobyhanna. Two others were reported killed in Coolbaugh Township, he added.

However, one death marred the opening of the season. A Berks County man died of a heart attack about 9 a.m. while hunting in the Long Pond area. He was identified by authorities as Romanus L. Kelsch, 31, of Bally.

Last night the Coolbaugh Township Fire Co. began a search for Vincent Peperno, Old Forge, who was reported missing in Coolbaugh Township near the county line. Mount Pocono State Police also began a routine check along area highways.

Safe

However, Peperno turned up safe and sound a short time later, and the search came to a halt.

Doebeling disclosed that two men may be lost in the Tannersville area. However, no search was immediately started because of darkness.

The father-son team that brought down a pair of bucks in the Franklin Hill section of East Stroudsburg were Alton Kunkle, East Stroudsburg RD3, and his son, Marshall Edward.

Kunkle killed a 180-pound, six-point buck at 9 a.m., and the son bagged his 180-pound, six-point buck two hours later.

A 14-year-old Daily Record carrier boy, Gary Rinker, of Stokes Ave., South Stroudsburg, shot a seven-point buck at 7:05 a.m. in the Chipperfield Dr. section of Stroud Township.

Another 14-year-old, Kenneth Snyder, of 154 E. Broad St., East Stroudsburg, bagged an eight-point buck on Effort Mountain.

Even the ladies were numbered among the successful deer hunters yesterday. Mrs. Barbara J. Tucker, of 1650 W. Main St., bagged a five-point buck in Shawnee about 8:45 a.m. A spike buck was shot by Mrs. Frank Merwarth, 421 King St., Stroudsburg, in Hamilton Township.

Here's a list of other successful marksmen and their prizes, as reported to The Daily Record:

Charles Balloos, of Shawnee, an eight-pointer in the Shawnee area; Frank Margretta, Stroudsburg, a seven-pointer in Pocono Township; Charles "Sonny" LaBar, Grove St., East Stroudsburg, a spike buck in Bushkill; E. J. Fellenner, Franklin Hill, a four-pointer in Mount Zion.

Also, Ralph Storm, Delaware Water Gap, a nine-pointer on Mount Minsi; Clinton Heller, 76 E. Broad St., East Stroudsburg, a crotch buck in Craigs Meadow; Tom Carson, an eight-pointer in Poplar Valley; Howard Woolever, eight-pointer, and his son-in-law, Lawrence Shook, three-pointer.

Swiss Screen Hungarians

BERN, Switzerland, Dec. 3 (AP)—The Swiss government disclosed today that all the Hungarian refugees admitted to this country are being screened to eliminate Communist agents.

Switzerland has admitted 6,000 Hungarians to permanent asylum during the last month and 4,000 more are expected.

A government announcement said "at least one" refugee had been sent back to Austria after other refugees denounced him as a secret police agent.

Arrest Number Reaches 256

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—An Italian-born street vendor, arrested 255 times since 1934, has been found guilty again of illegally selling peanuts, popcorn and ice cream.

He has had a running feud with the National Capital Parks Service. Park police have been arresting the vendor as often as they find him selling his snacks in park territory.

The vendor, John J. Costello, says Government Services, Inc., has a monopoly to sell foods in parks here in violation of public policy.

Heart Attack Proves Fatal To Hunter In Long Pond

ROMANUS L. KELSCH, 31, of Bally, Berks County, died of a heart attack while hunting in the woods near Long Pond yesterday about 9 a.m.

Kelsch, according to an investigation conducted by state and county authorities, had gone into the woods in what is known as the Beech area at 7 a.m., which marked the start of the 1956 deer season.

He was accompanied by two companions, Leo Spear and Charles Fronheiser, both of Bally. Shortly after 9 a.m., Kelsch complained to Spear of pains in his chest.

On Ground

A short time later, Spear missed his companion and went back to look for him. He found Kelsch lying on the ground. His gun was setting against a tree.

Spear and Fronheiser summoned State Police of the Fern Ridge Sub-station, who investigated and notified Dr. Charles A. Rushmore, county coroner. The physician said Kelsch died of a coronary at about 9:30 a.m.

Investigators learned from the hunter's companions that Kelsch's wife is expecting a baby this month.

Trio Pleads Guilty In Liquor Case

THREE PERSONS yesterday pleaded guilty in Monroe County Court to charges involving the sale of alcoholic beverages to four teenage girls at the Orchard tavern in Meisertown on Oct. 5-6.

President Judge Fred W. Davis ordered the owner, Amanda J. Langhorn, to pay a $250 fine and costs for permitting minors to frequent the premises of a licensed establishment.

The bartender, John Mosley, and Leola Gadsen, the waitress, each were fined $150 and costs for selling liquor to minors.

W. H. Hersh, who prosecuted the case for the State Liquor Control Board, said the drinks were bought for the girls — ranging in age between 14 and 17 — by a 24-year-old man.

Robert Sebring, Tannersville, pleaded guilty to a simple assault and battery charge, preferred by an East Stroudsburg, RD woman.

Pay Costs

He was sentenced to three to 12 months in the Monroe County Jail, the sentence to be completed from Oct. 5th. He also was ordered to pay the costs of prosecution.

Bruce D. Hoover, Stroudsburg, was sentenced to three to six months in jail after he pleaded guilty to driving while his license was suspended. He was also ordered to pay costs.

Grady R. Dowell and Marshall Neipert both entered guilty pleas to charges of driving under the influence of liquor. Each was fined $300 and costs. Dowell was ordered to make an immediate $100 payment, and pay the remainder at the rate of $40 monthly.

Albert Gower was fined $150 and costs, and placed on one year's probation, after he pleaded guilty to driving while his license was suspended. He was ordered to pay the amount within nine months.

In non-support cases, John P. McGinley was ordered to pay $27.50 weekly for the support of his wife and child; Russell Roe $20 a week for his wife, and John Mallin, $12 weekly for his wife and child.

Merchants To Circulate Questionnaire

A SPECIALLY prepared questionnaire will be mailed to all Stroudsburg merchants in the near future, it was revealed last night at a meeting of the Stroudsburg Businessmen's Assn. The meeting was held at the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

Charles Marsh, president of the organization, led a discussion aimed at creating a more active and productive Businessmen's Assn. The questionnaire was one of the ventures growing out of the discussion.

Marsh urged all merchants receiving the questionnaire to fill it out and return it to the association promptly. Results of the questionnaire will be used to better plan and carry out a program throughout the year.

Project

The first active project of the association will be the promotion of "in town" shopping, during which all stores will publicize the theme "Stroudsburg Has Everything".

Stores will open this campaign on Thursday. Cooperation of all merchants is asked in their individual advertising efforts.

David Miller presented magic and hypnotism as entertainment at the meeting.

The next meeting of the association will be held on Monday, Jan. 7. Time and place will be announced at a later date.

Stroudsburg Warns Parking Tickets May Prove Costly Unless Settled In Near Future

GOT ANY parking tickets tucked away in your pockets, purses or in the glove compartment of your car?

If you do, better take care of them right away because failure to do so could result in a fine and costs far exceeding the usual 50-cents charged for each ticket.

Stroudsburg Borough Secretary Harold Snyder served fair warning that the borough is going to really crack down on scoff-laws.

The borough has made it a practice to send a postcard to motorists who fail to pay up right away Snyder said. In such instances, however, the usual 50-cent fine is boosted to $1.

Then, if the ticket still remains unpaid, it is turned over to a justice of the peace for collection, the borough secretary further explained. That means the parking violator will have to pay an additional $5 in collection costs.

And, in extreme cases, a warrant may be served on the offender, Snyder said. That would add constable costs to the mounting charges.

Moreover, he pointed out, Borough Ordinance 393 provides for fines up to $10 per ticket. Added to the costs of prosecution, this could amount to a small fortune.

So pay up, please, and have a few extra bucks to spend on the wife and kids for Christmas!

Stroudsburg Youths, Parents Fined In Firecracker Case

SIX STROUDSBURG YOUTHS and their parents appeared before Chief Burgess Hal H. Harris Saturday after a firecracker was dropped in the crowded gymnasium at Stroudsburg High School last week.

Principal Alfred Munson disclosed the incident occurred during a noon lunch hour last Wednesday.

The firecracker exploded near youngsters using the gym at the time. However, none were hurt.

Munson said he and the assistant principal, Samuel Wells, began an investigation which turned up the fact that two youths were making the firecrackers, and one of them was selling them.

Investigation

Further investigation involved the six juveniles.

Munson explained that the incident was of such a nature that it was more than a school disciplinary problem. Therefore, Stroudsburg borough police were notified.

All of the offenders were fined, it was reported.

Meanwhile, Borough Police Chief James McConnell reminded youngsters and parents alike that it is a violation of borough ordinance and state law to sell, manufacture or discharge firecrackers in the borough or state.

Andrew C. Ferris, secretary of the Bangor Area Chamber of Commerce, appeared before council to press for a central parking lot.

Edmund Turzio, attorney for the Chamber, recalled in a letter that the voters of Bangor in 1954 had approved a referendum providing for the erection of a parking lot, and contended that council had failed to carry out the wishes of the people.

J. Lawrence Davis, borough solicitor, declined to give an on-the-spot legal opinion, but said he felt there was "grave doubt" that the county courts would mandate the construction of a parking lot by council.

Discussion

There was a long discussion on the matter of sewage disposal. Clarence Beagle, Third Ward councilman, reported he felt last Thursday's town meeting on sewage proposals was a failure insofar as getting a true picture of public opinion was concerned.

Davis declared he felt council has explored the problem far enough and has reached the point where a decision must be made. Council brought the discussion to a close by deciding to look into the matter of obtaining federal money to finance a sewage project for the borough.

Upon the recommendation of Burgess Hayden B. Pritchard, council agreed to appoint a committee to study the advisability of a wage tax in Bangor, due to the fact that Bethlehem has voted a similar tax. A large number of Bangorians work in Bethlehem, but would not have to pay the levy if they paid a similar tax in Bangor.

Named to the committee were Samuel Hicks, Herman Snyder, William Holland and Arthur Messinger.

DePamphilis and Dr. James Brusie were elected delegates to the new seven-district jointure which becomes effective July 1.

DePamphilis selected LaBar, Dr. Brusie, Ace, Stoddard and Cornell Wallwork as delegates to the existing three-district jointure which expires June 30. Stoddard declined the appointment and DePamphilis took over the fifth spot. This group will reorganize in Bangor tonight.

Three Injured

DINGMANS FERRY — Three persons were injured last night in a head-on collision on a narrow, winding stretch of the Silver Lake Road between Dingmans and Porter's Lake. Both cars were demolished.

Milford State Police identified the injured as Victor DePascale, 55, Newark, N.J., one of the drivers; and Beatrice Goble, 35, and Margaret Coffey, 22, both of Baltimore, Md., and passengers in a car operated by John J. Giordano, 25, Philadelphia.

Dr. Jack Bullock, Milford, treated DePascale for fractured ribs, a broken sternum and lacerations of the chin and contusions of the knee. Miss Coffey received treatment for scalp lacerations, and the Goble woman suffered abrasions and lacerations of the scalp and right knee. They were taken to the doctor's office by the Milford Fire Department ambulance.

Promoting Better World Understanding Finds Strong Support At Conference

Of the various agencies of the United Nations, perhaps none is more controversial than the Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization. Nevertheless, it appears now to be winning fresh support in this country from somewhat surprising quarters.

Stanley C. Allyn, president of the National Cash Register Co., headed the American delegation at UNESCO's 10th anniversary meeting at New Delhi, India.

That a top U. S. businessman would not only accept such an assignment but prosecute it vigorously and enthusiastically constitutes real news. For up to now UNESCO has been a favorite whipping boy in some American quarters.

Allyn states flatly why he took the job: "In my view my presence on the delegation was an indication of the stake that American business has in heightened mutual understanding between nations. Business relations must rest on a foundation of mutual trust, and understanding creates trust.

"I want to say as emphatically as I can that the American business community is and should be vitally interested in better cultural relations, in raising educational and living standards, and in the work of UNESCO generally."

The business of promoting better world understanding through improved cultural, scientific and educational exchanges among the nations is a slow, unspectacular process.

New Delhi has not been competing with the Middle East and Western capitals for headlines. But the goals appear sound, and if even a part of them can be attained, then the headlines shouting crisis might be fewer in the future.

Construction Industry Is Helping To Sustain High Level Of Economy

News dispatches indicate the construction industry, which has been booming along at a merry clip, is in for another boom year in 1957.

Altogether, public and private construction projects totaling 46.5 billion dollars have been approved. Included in this figure is 2.5 billion in bond issues which won endorsement of voters in the last election.

There is, and with good cause, a general atmosphere of optimism in the construction field even allowing for a continuing decline in new housing starts. Public construction is expected to rise by 12 per cent next year toward a new high of 15 billion dollars.

George Sokolsky Says...

Death Of War Captives Presumed By U. S. So Why Continue Talks With Red Chinese?

Our State Department has been conducting a series of conferences on the ambassadorial level with the representatives of Red China which have now covered 16 months. The purpose of these conferences at Geneva has been to free Americans still held in defiance of the Geneva Convention.

Despite this fact reported whenever the conferences occur, now for perhaps 40 times, always reported in the press, and always as a failure, when mothers inquire of the State Department concerning their sons, they receive a form reply which is obviously inaccurate except that there is the official pretense that these conferences are not about all Americans held in China but only about civilians.

Mrs. Alice Anderson writes to me to say that her son was first listed as missing; then he was on a list of 944 still being held; then he was presumed to be dead; then he is still on a list of those who are being discussed at the Geneva conferences for an accounting. Granted that it is difficult to deal with Communists, particularly the Red Chinese who are holding these Americans as hostages, but when one reads a letter signed by Allyn C. Donaldson, Director of Special Consular Services, one is not a little shocked at the callousness of the formal reply.

I now give the principal paragraphs of this letter, after omitting only on identifying sentence and the "Sincerely yours" conclusion.

"With respect to United States personnel who served in Korea, it is recalled that by a resolution of the United Nations Security Council on July 27, 1950, a Unified Command was established under the United States. Acting as the Unified Command, the United States established the United Nations Command under which our forces served in repelling the aggression against the Republic of Korea. At no time did the United States Government abdicate responsibility for these forces.

"During the armistice negotiations, in the ensuing repatriation period, and subsequently in the Military Armistice Commission, in the United Nations General Assembly and in the ambassadorial talks at Geneva, this Government has asserted every effort to obtain a complete accounting for all prisoners of war, and particularly the return of any member of its armed forces held by the Communist side. You will recall that with the support of the United Nations, voting 47 to 5 in the General Assembly, we secured the return of eleven fliers in August of 1955.

"Since the release of the eleven fliers, the United States knows of no American Military personnel of the Korean conflict now being held prisoner by the Communist side. The 450 servicemen who are missing and unaccounted for in the Korean conflict are presumed by the Department of Defense to be dead. The United States will continue strongly to a high court only by phone. If anybody held out for clothes on performers on the screen up to now it was a high court judge.

What's happening? Are we getting gayer jurists? Is the bench becoming more open-minded? Beneath some black robes does there beat the heart of a carnival promoter? We asked Judge Pitelny Frazzhead, an old friend of ours, for an opinion today. "Nah, cinema has become routine in American life. Clothes are going out," he said.

"With the approval of our highest courts?" we asked.

"The height of a court has nothing to do with it. For years nothing but narrowness counted. Now its breadth," he replied.

"During the summer I have seen some of the best known jurists of the country on our bathing beaches and they weren't wearing much, either."

"Was the court long in reaching its decision?" we inquired.

"I understand there was quite a delay due to the fact the judges insisted upon reviewing the evidence."

"Where does Eric Johnston stand in this matter?" we asked.

"Eric let nature take its course. He is supposed to be czar of the movies, but I don't think he has bothered to look at one in years."

"The state board will appeal the decision to the Supreme Court, will it not?" we asked.

"Positively. And I hear the Supreme Court can hardly wait," said Frazzhead.

Saving Family Funds Is Woman's Business

By Margaret Latrobe
Who saves the money in your family? And let's not beg the question by appending "if any" and "if anyone."

Changing Times' reports that "in families... in the $2,000 to $30,000 bracket... which covers the great majority of people—the wife plays the more active role in making sure something is saved. Above the $10,000 mark, it's the husband who handles the savings.

From which some might conclude, "Isn't that just like a man?" In the lower echelon incomes where saving is almost impossible, it is Madam's job to put quarters in the sugar bowl. But let fortune smile, and Pop can think of $10,000 reasons why he should take over the piggy bank.

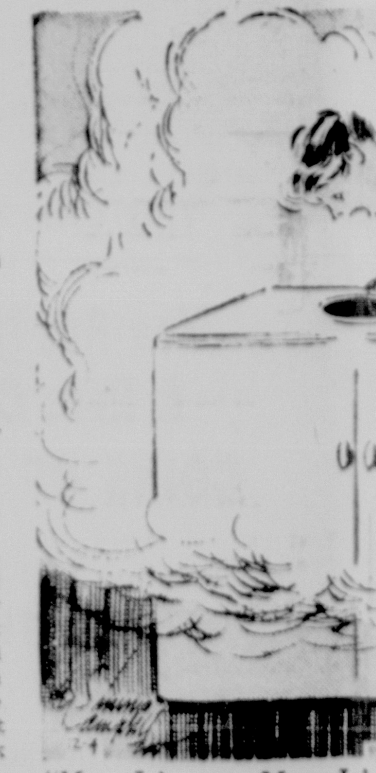

Be that as may be, the joint is this—extravagant, financially irresponsible females have gone out of style. Decidedly, "We do a little juggling between new bonnets vs. pearl chokers. We may lift our domestic doldrums with a highly unthrifty pair of fine suede gloves. But we aren't spending the rent money on baubles. These small extravaganzas come out of tiny reserves permitting of some free spending—if ment parks, carnivals, ballroom men, dazed performers and trained animals... There will be tenants of a car down the chute—their cries from the Ferris Wheel and the chatter of the barker's... Many a parent, hearing a little child ask, "What was that, Daddy?" after a strange sound in the night will answer, "Elephants!"

Labor Racketeering Faces Intensive Probe By Senate

Washington, Dec. 3—Big-time labor racketeering is in for a big-time investigation.

It will be made by the Senate Investigating Committee, headed by Senator John McClellan (D., Ark.). Preparations for a sweeping probe have been quietly in progress since last summer. A sizable staff has been digging up evidence in eight major cities throughout the country.

They are: New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Chicago, Detroit, Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

At least four other key cities are of the Committee's list for similar thorough checkups on labor racketeering—when it gets more money. These are: Boston, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and St. Louis.

An additional $200,000 will be sought from the new Senate that convenes on January 3.

Senator McClellan also plans to ask for broader authority for conducting this investigation. Purpose behind that is to include various government agencies, particularly the Labor, Justice and Treasury Departments.

It is proposed to bring out into the open what they have or have not done to crackdown on big-time racketeering and the misuse of funds in labor unions.

Committee members stress that the impending investigation is not "anti-labor." They assert the sole intent is to expose a vicious condition that is a serious problem both for labor and the country as a whole. As proof of this they cite the contemplated inclusion of enforcement agencies in the probe.

Likely first big-name witness will be James R. Hoffa, vice president of the Teamsters, largest union in the country.

Generally credited with being the most powerful figure in this union, Hoffa's extensive operations, business holdings, dealings and other activities have been under scrutiny by Committee agents for months. A report on his numerous interests covers insurance, farming, brewing, real estate, oil and banking.

Significantly the probe has obtained important information and "leads" from the unpublished records of Senator Estes Kefauver's famous crime investigation.

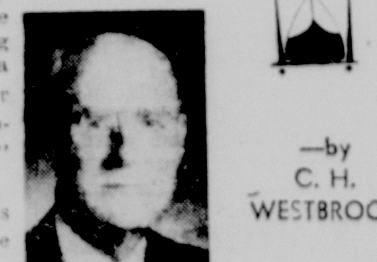

Its voluminous files contain a great deal of valuable data that has been used by a number of congressional investigations. These records were made available to the McClellan Committee and have proved very helpful.

Still undecided is whether its hearings will be televised as were Kefauver's. The matter has been discussed, but no final action was taken.

Other Committee members are Senators Henry Jackson (D., Wash.), Stuart Symington (D., Mo.), Joseph McCarthy (R., Wis.), and Karl Mundt (R., S. D.). One vacancy exists as a result of the failure of Senator George Bender (R., O.), to be re-elected.

Joe Shea Doing Well As Cadet

By Jim Riley

Joe Shea, a graduate of East Stroudsburg High and a former resident of that borough, is doing very well for himself as a Cadet at West Point.

Shea, who suffered a serious knee injury in football last season, had surgery performed on the damaged joint and was forced to leave the academy.

But, Shea, one of the most determined and deserving guys it has even been this reporter's pleasure to know, won readmittance to The Point this Fall and is now doing very well.

Joe is number 12 in a calculus class of 50.

Shea was anxious to be remembered to his many friends during a brief visit at the Army-Navy game on Saturday. He also wanted to know about the Thanksgiving Day football game and other bits of news of outstanding interest.

Joe's mother and two sisters are now living in Wilmington, Del.

Shea has gone down in history as one of the top football stars to ever graduate from the N. Courtland St. school.

Nancy Kresge, McMichael's, was a member of the crowd at the Army-Navy game.

Nancy was seated on the Navy side cheering like mad for the Middles as they rallied in the fourth quarter to tie the score at 7-7.

"Bud" Altman, Sarah Street, Stroudsburg, was also a spectator at the service football classic.

"Bud" is a fixture in the men's department at the A. B. Wyckoff Department Store.

John and Bernice Whitehead, Wallace St., Stroudsburg, were spectators at the East Stroudsburg State Teachers College-Millersville basketball game on Saturday night.

John is a well known teacher and coach at Stroudsburg High.

Chet Lucki is currently doing carpenter work at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College.

Chet is a resident of South Stroudsburg.

Bob Phillips, Queen Street, Stroudsburg, missed the first day of deer season yesterday.

Floyd "Jackson" DeHaven, Scotrun, is another of the area's outstanding hunters who was unable to make the big day.

William Balles, Art Editor for the Stroud Courier, never misses a good picture. He's always on the ball when shots are available.

The Courier is the monthly publication at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College.

Father Francis Barrett, St. Matthews and St. Luke's and Father Robert Calligan, Pocono Missions, recently attended an institute for Catholic priests.

The institute took place at Marywood College, Scranton.

Holiday Hats Loom Large And Bright In Gala Season

By Dorothy Roe
Associated Press Women's Editor

Milliners have done everything to this season's crop of holiday hats except wire them for sound and trim them with neon lights. But even without sound effects, there is no doubt that you can hear the new hats coming.

When a lady wears one of the new gala hats, their impact on beholders has a range of at least two blocks. Some bemused males have been seen to stumble off curbs in front of onrushing traffic, so fascinated have they been by a passing feminine chapeau.

The new hats are big, bold and startling. They are laden with anything from cabbage roses to ostrich plumes. They are made of fur, velvet, satin or feathers. Often they are bejeweled. And always they are spectacular.

This is the season when women can shoot the works in the matter of millinery. No longer must they be content with an understated beanie or a scrap of veiling. This is the year when hats are hats, and the bigger the better.

King-size cartwheels of velvet or tulle are seductive as all get-out when worn for restaurant dining. Towering turbans of fruit, flowers and jewels light up the holiday cocktail scene. Some women appear to be wearing complete gardens atop their hairdos. Others choose the rarer mink mutations for luxurious headgear.

It's all in fun, and the more hat the merrier, say the milliners. And besides the new hats provide a constant topic of conversation for startled husbands and beaux.

FEATHERED FRIEND—this deep cloche for gala wear looks like fur but is made of white feathers in a fringe effect.

Just Between Us

Thoughts which may give you comfort while waiting for the change from your Christmas buying:

For many years I have maintained that the words "Christmas budget" are a contradiction in terms. You can't budget Christmas any more than you can budget joy or sorrow, love or hate. I never knew anybody who could promise to love two delectable wifery today with maybe three delectables on Sunday.

Now, a dozen assorted nieces and nephews richer and a whole lot of spending money poorer, you might think that for once I'd admit I was wrong. But not this mule-head.

Oh, I'll readily admit that you may — change that to "must" — have to budget the amount you spend for Christmas. But for every dollar you shave off add a triple amount of time and thought and you'll still have Christmas unbudgeted.

For instance, it takes much less time to buy a record player than to find just the right record to please one particular child. For one thing you have to have the particular child firmly in mind: how old he is, what he liked the last time you saw him, how his viewpoint and his critical judgment may have changed in the intervening months.

You think that much concentrated thinking about one child isn't going to do him any good? Then you and I differ. Maybe in the writer of opening packages, he's not going to get any mysterious thought waves tangled in the ribbons of my particular package — but he himself is so much nearer and dearer to me, it's bound to make a difference in our relationship.

So I'll budget my money if

GOP Council Represented At Convention

The Monroe County Council of Republican Women was represented at the state convention held last week in Pittsburgh. Mrs. Foster Minnich and Mrs. Carl Wagner, delegates, returned full of enthusiasm for the program and the speakers.

Theme of the convention was "Every Citizen has a Political Responsibility" and members were urged to consider politics their affair, not merely in the six weeks before election, but throughout the year.

Reed Benson of Utah, son of Secretary of Agriculture Benson, was one of the outstanding speakers, the delegates reported. "The price paid by men and women for not being interested in politics is a government by those who are working for themselves," he said.

"One of the most potent forces in the world," he added "is a determined woman armed in a righteous cause."

The delegates agreed with him and further passed a resolution calling for better representation of women in governmental positions.

Mrs. William Martingale of Harrisburg, was re-elected state president.

Further reports on the convention will be given at the meeting of the Council on December 12.

Women Turn Hand To Do-It-Yourself Decorating

Do-it-yourself Christmas decorations are sweeping the market this year and one of the most useful is the Christmas card tree. The tree itself takes three-quarters of a yard of 54 inch material. In plastic it may be hung on the front door for the mailman's convenience. In felt it may be hung on the wall or over the fireplace to display Christmas cards.

You can let your imagination run riot in the matter of decorating the tree. Beads, sequins and spangles, and an outline of nautical rickrack make a good start. Instructions are available in pattern form not only for the Christmas card tree but for a Christmas table runner with pockets for napkins; a Christmas tree skirt and applique motifs of bells, holly, reindeer, stars, candles and wreaths.

A note from Gertrude Roberts

Ruth calls attention to an error that appeared in this column when I mentioned her book of poetry, "Fragments," being sold at 1.00 a copy in our stationery department. The book was not published in Israel, as reported, but by the American Press in Beirut, Syria. A really "Syrian" point—if you know your geography a bit better than I . . . Strips of white metal form a globe around which are four white candle holders to hold tall, slender red tapers. The price of this unusual and striking decoration is 2.98 in our Wyckoff gift department . . . Our Wyckoff Toyland is quite the most amazing part of our store. There are Lionel trains for children and their dads; dolls for little girls, their big sisters, and their moms; scores of games for the entire family, huge industrial machines cut down to size for tots who like to play at workday jobs; skyscrapers to be built of slender fragments of wood — everything conceivable, as a matter of fact. No wonder Victor Herbert called TOYLAND JOYLAND . . . Wire angels at 1.99 are cute as can be for Christmas decorating, and we also recommend that an angel summon your Christmas guests to dinner. Your angel dinner bells are of china, the figures being of charming little girls with flirtatious eyes, bright red coats, Christmas packages and holy wreaths on their arms. Tiny white wings jut out from their shoulder blades. One delightful imp even has her legs skate swinging from a strap. Wonder if summoning dinner guests with an angel bell makes yours ANGEL FOOD? Could be! . . . Chintz as old-fashioned and dainty as lavender and old lace covers the beautiful sewing boxes with little handles on display in our notions department at 5.98. Plastic quilted cases are 6.98. "Chintz-erly yours" would be my personal choice, but either is lovely and can be used as an overnight case when traveling . . . Our notions department also suggests fitted makeup, laundry, or toilet cases for travelers. These are in clear and floral plastic cases priced from 1.00 to 2.98 depending upon size and number of accessories. Practical and pretty they are designed to fit every need of the person away from home . . . Tub-tms, those versatile slippers for travel and home lounging have taken on a snobbish new air of elegance which is most attractive. In our latest shipment there are broadies with metallic thread design, and sales are soon what thicker than before—something new that will delight women of all age and size.

Fine Feathers Bring Award To Mrs. Goddard

Mrs. W. F. Goddard's feathers came home to roost, and brought with them a blue ribbon, signifying first place in hand art in the International Exhibit of Hand-craft held in the 71st Regiment Armory in New York City.

Mrs. Goddard had created note-paper decorated with feathers and free hand water color drawings. She has used the feathers from her husband's trophies in the hunting field, even parakeet feathers in creating her designs. At the urging of friends, she entered several designs in the exhibit, using pheasant feathers.

Unable to attend the exhibit herself she was unaware of the honors won by her creation until they were returned with the blue ribbon and the citation.

Cub Scout Awards

Pen Argyl — Achievement awards were presented to 10 boys by Richard Kitto, cubmaster of Cub Pack 34. Receiving the awards were William Piper, Bruce Schadet, Brian Farleigh, Thomas Hontz, John Sandercock, Stephen Horn, Robert Henderson, George Wynne, Kim Edwards, and Ray Nottle.

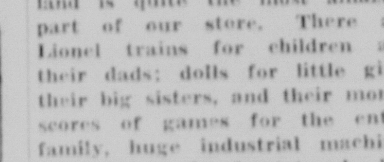

THE Wyckoff SHOPPER

For your friends who are pitcher collectors consider those just arrived from Israel. In mellow blue and copper, these are about 2 1/2 inches high, and priced at 1.75. In our Wyckoff gift department. Little pitchers have more than big ears. They have BIG style . . . One of our prettiest cutting boards of ample size is an American-made creation hailing from Illinois, and its design consists of a table of herbs, appetizers, fish, meat and vegetables in vivid colors. It's a four dollar retailer and a real beauty. The kind of "bread and board" any housewife would like to share . . . Our gift department's car-y-all is a cleverly informative name for the roomy leather and leatherette compartments for car owners. These boxes are the right height to serve as an arm rest, and deep enough to hold maps, sunglasses, binoculars, Kleenex and a zillion other items that overflow from the glove compartment. The price is 5.95 for the leatherette; 7.95 for the leather. It's that perfect solution to the problem of the friend who has everything—the place to keep it!

Seventh-Day Adventist Church Launches Missions Appeal

THE 53RD annual World Missions Appeal, sponsored by the Stroudsburg Seventh-Day Adventist Church, was launched over the weekend with house-to-house calls accompanied by Christmas caroling.

Leading the volunteer workers participating in the area-wide drive is Robert Hilliard, church home missions director.

Funds will go toward extending welfare, disaster relief, and educational services at home as well as a wide-spread medical, welfare, and educational ministry in 183 lands abroad.

On the world basis, volunteer Adventist workers in 1955 gave 6,026,464 hours in welfare service to 6,077,203 persons. More than $1,000,000 in cash, some 5,000,000 articles of clothing and 2,000,000 food contributions were given in a relief program conservatively valued at $23,708,912. Nearly 60 per cent of this aid was given in North America.

Seven-day Adventist members themselves contributed more than $62,000,000 last year toward the support of their world church program, in addition to welfare activities.

18 Popular Marrying Age For Girls

By Eugene Gilbert
President of Gilbert Youth Research Co.

MORE GIRLS marry at 18 than at any other age. Yet only a year or two before that, most of them are thinking of marriage as something far in the future.

This was what surprised us most in talking with the pre-marriage group of boys and girls — those between 13 and 17 — to discover their ideas on early marriage.

A great majority of them favored matrimony at 23. Girls preferred 22 and boys 24.

A Nebraska youth said: "Early marriages are no longer practical. First, there's school. Then the Army. A fellow has to be at least in his Mid-twenties before he can possibly support a family."

Said a Raleigh, N.C., girl: "Wives expect to work after marriage. And a good job is almost impossible to find without a college degree. So it's much more sensible to wait until education is finished and a girl can settle down to being a wife."

They Want To Grow

Most youngsters, however, feel that they would be ready for marriage within two or three years after high school graduation. They want time to mature and to get used to handling responsibilities before starting their own families.

"An 18-year-old getting married today doesn't stand much chance of having a really good marriage," asserted a teen from Delaware. "Why, at that age he or she hasn't learned anything about life. We all need time to grow, like plants."

One of our interviewers, a 1952 high school graduate, noted: "The only two divorcees so far among my classmates took place with girls who had married at 18 or 19. Isn't this excellent proof of the danger of the too-early marriage?"

Then how long should engagements last?

Between 3 and 12 months, say 82 per cent of the 13-17-year-olds. Just enough time to get to know one another, they figure, without letting the relationship become a stale habit. If the engagement is too long, the romantic glow burns out. Too short — and the young bride and groom don't know each other well enough to hurdle their first argument.

And while the teen-agers were all in favor of romance, they were overwhelmingly positive about a well-paying job being necessary before marriage. The figures: 82 per cent, girls 87 per cent.

Money Comes First

In fact, when asked what was the most important prerequisite for marriage, 35 per cent voted for money. This ranked closely behind disposition, 38 per cent, and personality, 36 per cent. The teens made it clear, however, that they were looking for material means in a mate only because it would give the marriage a greater chance for success.

"It's not that I'm materialistic," explained a 16-year-old lass from South Dakota, "but everything is so expensive today. And marriage is tough enough without the added jumble of trying to make out on limited funds."

They turned thumbs down on money as an end in itself.

"The most loathsome people I've ever met," exclaimed a Tennessee high school girl, "are those who are looking for a rich husband or wife. They are the lowest element in the world. It's like buying the most expensive dress in the store just because it costs the most money — not because it's the prettiest!"

On the other hand, about half of the group felt that if they did marry in their teens their families should help support them. The percentages were: 65 for boys; 32 for girls. A smaller number believed their own family would contribute if they married very young — 36 per cent boys, 30 per cent girls.

Seventy per cent said they wouldn't object if their parents supported them after marriage. A Minnesota lad explained: "It is the obligation of the older generation to provide for the younger until they are able to provide for themselves."

Cutoff Point

But an Oregon girl was indignant at the thought. "Our fathers and mothers have worked all their lives to build for their kids. When the young folks want to set up homes of their own, it is time for them to fend for themselves. If children want to be supported, they should stay at home with Dad and Mom."

Less and less now do lads consider it unmanly to let their wives work. Of the group we interviewed, 61 per cent of the boys and 49 per cent of the girls felt a wife ought to work during the first years of marriage.

They pointed out that women now have an important place in the business world. And they admitted that two incomes are more helpful than one in meeting today's high cost of living.

But working wives are still far in the future, the 13-17-year-old young people think. Marriage is "way off."

Then how to account for more and more youngsters marrying at

Area Students Reveal Feelings On Various Queries

Greene-Dreher Students Like Rural Homes

Greene-Dreher-Sterling Joint High School, Newfoundland

By Thelma Skelton

QUESTION: "Do you think living in the country is better than living in the city?"

Diane Streeby, sophomore—Yes, I do. Living in the country is better for young people, as we have more freedom to roam about. We enjoy all the beauty of nature that God has given us, the air so free, the sky so blue, and the stars shine so bright at night, it seems as if you could almost reach up and pick one out for yourself. In the city the smog is so dense, in the morning early it seems like it is going to rain until the sun shines through. We in the country do not realize what it is to live in the city. We have hiking, boating, fishing and flowers growing wild. We can enjoy hiking in our parks and forests, where it is quiet—just the singing of birds, and the chirp of squirrels, and the whispering of the wind through the trees. In the city, all you hear is the constant blowing of horns, and roaring of motors, and everybody seems to be in a hurry, running to and fro. As for me, I prefer to live in the country.

Roger Gilpin, sophomore — I think living in the country is a lot better than living in the city for a lot of reasons. Most of all, living in the country gives a youth or teen-ager a general knowledge of the great forests and nature, which all ambitious boys and girls like to know about. It gives an opportunity for such sports as hunting, boating, fishing, and swimming. These sports all enjoyed at our back door.

Helen Phillips, junior—Yes, I think living in the country is better than living in the city for you have plenty of room to move around and you can breathe that good old fresh, country air. I don't think there are as many teen gangs or as much juvenile delinquency in the country as in the city. Teen-agers in the country have many more places in which to enjoy their sports and can keep off the streets.

Carolyn Campbell, senior—Yes, living in the country, in my opinion, is much better for anyone. As far as being able to get into more trouble in the city, I don't believe it. You can get in just as much in a small country town. It's just that here you have a free, wide open feeling. The air is clean and fresh, and you feel 100% alive and alert.

Thomas Sweeney, junior—I think that living in the country is far better for teen-agers because they are less likely to get into trouble. In the cities most of the parents do not know what their children are doing, or where they are. In the country most parents know approximately where they are and what they are doing. Therefore, I think that a teen-ager living in the country is less likely to get into trouble, and therefore, it is the best place to live.

Robert Obert, senior—Yes, I really think living in the country is better than living in the city for this reason: now that hunting season is here I can almost walk off my back porch into the woods to hunt, whereas if I lived in a city, I might have to drive as much as fifty to one hundred miles to hunt big game. Some city schools don't even get time off for hunting like we do. Another reason I think it's better to live in the country is that there is always fresh air to breathe, and in some parts of cities smoke-fumes from factories often affects your breathing. The traffic problem is another advantage to not living in a city. You don't have to worry about beating red lights, or beating the car next to you at them, but instead you drive in open spaces where there isn't much traffic and you don't worry about city laws. In closing I'll say if you don't like cities, stay away from them!

Coolbaugh Interested In Sportsmanship

QUESTION: "In interscholastic athletics, which is more important—winning the game or learning good sportsmanship and leadership?"

Leon Shiner: Learning good sportsmanship and leadership is more important. They are things that will stay with you your whole life. Inter-school rivalry is beneficial because it helps you achieve good sportsmanship and leadership.

Ralph Kuhlow: Learning good sportsmanship and leadership is more important. You will benefit more by these things than you would by just winning a game. Inter-school rivalry is beneficial.

John Woodburn: Learning good sportsmanship and leadership is more important. These things will help make a better American out of you.

Sportsmanship Major Issue

Bangor Area Joint High School

By Lois Reimer

QUESTION: "In interscholastic athletics, which is more important—winning the game or learning good sportsmanship?"

John L. Williams Jr.—Winning the game is probably the most important thing in a player's mind; but, you are also taught to be a good loser. When you do lose, though, you should feel as if you have lost something. Sportsmanship and leadership also are taught because most coaches feel that both of these are essential in your future life.

Yes—I think rivalry is a great thing as long as it does not start into riots and the players show good sportsmanship and leadership. It gives you a chance to beat the guys you usually know the best and really want to beat; this really arouses spirit for the game. When these games develop into a free for all, as far as the ball game and spectators go, these games should be brought to a halt.

Nancy Chamberlain—I definitely think that learning good sportsmanship and leadership is more important. There are so many other challenges in life that a person meets in which he must display his sportsmanship and leadership. In many of these challenges he does not always profit. Therefore I feel that it is important for the athlete to learn good sportsmanship and leadership while he is young. If he can attain these two characteristics he will definitely be a good loser and a good winner.

In my opinion inter-school rivalry is very beneficial. It helps prepare the athlete to meet greater challenges. It also creates a feeling of fellowship not only among the athletes, but among the student body. The spirit of competitiveness which it creates in each athlete will definitely be an asset.

Dale Miller—in my opinion, one is as important as the other. When you go out for a sport, your main object is to win not learn good sportsmanship and leadership. Your coaches teach you the latter two qualities if you do not yet possess them.

I think inter-school rivalry is beneficial because you will play harder to defeat an opponent which you do not care for. The one time when I think it is not beneficial is when it leads to destroying something at your rival's school or home.

Robert Butz—Learning good sportsmanship is the most important by far. Every athlete wants to win and should try to win, also, but if you play a good game and lose by being beaten by a better team, you still feel good. But if somebody lets the team down or if something unfair is called by the officials to cost a ball game, it makes you feel pretty gloomy.

I think inter-school rivalry is beneficial, because it makes the students feel more strongly toward of you. Inter-school rivalry is very beneficial.

Margaret Regan: Having good sportsmanship and leadership is more important. Throughout your life they will help you a lot. Much more than winning a game would.

Gary Smith: Learning good sportsmanship and leadership is more important. They are things that will help you all your life. If you learn these things you will be able to get along with people much better. Inter-school rivalry is beneficial because it helps you obtain good sportsmanship.

Telephone Use Explained At Stroudsburg

under the supervision of Miss Anna M. Stem, head of the English Department, were given pointers at Stroudsburg High School on "Good Telephone Usage."

A teletrainer apparatus consisting of two dial phones operating equipment belonging to the Bell Telephone Co. were used.

Parents

Parents who are in business or in the professions and those who hold jobs outside of school received the various calls of an emergency, business and social nature. Each student had his own telephone number.

Especially emphasized were pointers on identifying oneself, answering promptly, taking messages accurately and courteously, transferring calls carefully, handling complaints tactfully, placing calls locally and long distance, using the directory, telephone personality; in speaking, the diction, inflection, emphasis, voice tone and pitch and pleasant conclusion of the call.

their school and team. It arouses enthusiasm, school spirit, and interest in something common for everyone.

Ray Hughes—I think learning good sportsmanship and leadership is the main purpose of interscholastic athletics and is the point most coaches try to put across to the players. Most athletes are good sports, and while they try as hard as possible to win, as they should, they follow the rules of fair play. A few, however, are determined to win at any price. Such an attitude defeats the whole purpose of sports, which is to provide wholesome recreation, to build strong bodies, and to develop good character. If all schools and colleges would constantly stress these goals of sports, there would be a decreasing number of players and spectators who want to win at any cost and who display poor sportsmanship during games.

Inter-school rivalry is very good from the standpoint of the participants. It provides the spark needed on a winning team. This, of course, can be carried too far if the pupils become unruly and damage each other's schools. However, it is realized by most pupils and there is not much trouble of that kind in this area.

Chestnuthill Picks Country Over City

Chestnuthill High School, Broadheadville

By Carolyn Smith

QUESTION: "Do you think living in the country is better than living in the city?"

Mickey ter Linden—I think the country is better . . . for health reasons, at least. I lived in a city for five years and I should know. The air is bad and there is no wide open spaces. I'll take the country.

Irene Le Blanc—There are advantages to both. I have lived in a city and I am now living in the country. Personally I like the wide open spaces and the peace and quiet of my country life. The city offers quick and reliable transportation and convenient shopping centers, but the schools are usually more crowded and teaching conditions in general less favorable than in the country. So even though one has to travel in the country for quite a distance to reach schools, stores, and entertainment, I think what the country has to offer outweighs the advantages of the city.

Ray Frohner—The country has a much better environment for young people, healthwise and every other wise. The city offers more and bigger recreational centers but in spite of this there is more juvenile delinquency in the city.

David Dorshimer—Give me the country. I like to work on a farm. Also I like hunting, fishing, and all the other forms of country sport, and much better than the gangs of the city.

Shirley Kresge — I'll take the country. I don't like being pushed around on crowded streets and rushing to make crossings. I don't like the atmosphere of hurry. I like space to play and enjoy life. Give me the country where there is space between houses.

Dorothy Waligunda — Country living is more enjoyable. One has space in which to really enjoy life. The city offers many conveniences but they dim in comparison with what the country gives in health and peace of mind.

Stanley Krieger — The country is for me. There is more recreation and places for good sport like hunting and fishing. The country is safer for both play and work and offers opportunity to learn wildlife.

Judy Walter — The country is my answer. There's more space for play and the development of sound health. The country has less disease and accidents. It makes for better living in every way.

sportsmanship and leadership are two main factors in playing sports and is probably more important than winning, because you may carry these factors all through life with you and apply them to almost anything you do. But, I do like to win.

Inter-school rivalry is beneficial, as long as it doesn't go too far as to be destructive, because it will build a stronger desire to win the game.

Pope Pius High Students Air Good Qualities For Success

Pius X High School, Roseto

By Phyllis Ann Comunale

QUESTION: "What does the teen-ager feel is a good quality, or some good qualities, for success?"

Doris Trigiani, senior—I think to be a success in life every person should have the initiative to get ahead and the ability to mingle in and get along with other people.

Stevann Barczynski, freshman—The greatest part of a person's success is due to his ability to keep trying, his confidence in himself and others, and his courage to do what is right. Honesty and charity are his chief characteristics.

Leonard Grappa, freshman—To be a success in life, constant hard work and the continual striving to get ahead in his future endeavors play a very important part.

Philomena Falcone, sophomore—I think constant and continued hard work combined with honesty and truthfulness are the perfect ways to climb the ladder of success.

Faith Ann Fioriglia, senior—To be a success in life we must have patience, and learn never to give up. "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again." Above all we should have Christian principles behind our every action, and remember that "honesty is the best policy."

Phillip Sabetti, junior—For a teenager to be successful now and in his later years, he should be able to cooperate with his authorities and fellow students, and also be able to hold responsible positions.

The Eternal Light

A candle is a small thing.

But one candle can light another,

*And as it gives its flame to the other,
see how its own light . . . increases!*

You are such a light.

Light is the power to dispel darkness.

You have this power to move back the darkness in yourself and in others—with the birth of light created when one mind illuminates another, when one heart kindles another, when one man strengthens another.

And its flame, also, enlarges within you as you pass it on.

Throughout history children of darkness have tried to smother this passage of light from man to man. Throughout history dictators, large and small, have tried to darken, diminish and separate men by force.

But in the end they fail.

For always somewhere in the world the light remains; ready to burn its brightest where it is dark; a light that began when God created the world:

*" . . . Who coverest Thyself with light, as with a garment . . . " **

And every free people has remained free by resisting those who would extinguish in men the light of freedom, of love, of truth.

To do our daily part to increase this light, we must remember that a candle alone is a small thing, a man alone is a small thing, a nation alone is a small thing.

Remembering this, we must recognize something much more than our indispensability to others. We must also remember their indispensability to us.

* Psalm 104

We are moved to bring this Hanukkah message to your attention because we believe it has a meaning to everyone today. It is published in the interest of fellowship, and the fostering of service to one another.

For how can we hope—either as individuals or nations—to reach our maximum until we help those around us reach theirs?

To be strong, the strong must serve.

* * * *

"These lights we now kindle . . ."

These words accompany the lighting of Hanukkah candles in the home, and in the heart, to commemorate the eternal bridge of light which reaches from Creation itself to the radiant spirit of free men.

In this spirit is celebrated the Festival of Hanukkah—the Festival of Light—wherein the candle that gives its light to the others is called "the servant candle."

You, too, are strongest . . . when you serve.

Civil Defense To Study Regulations

MONROE COUNTY Civil Defense will meet at 7:30 tonight at the courthouse in Stroudsburg to study the rules and regulations pertaining to the purchase of Government surplus supplies which recently were made available to local C-D agencies by the Federal Civil Defense Administration.

According to newly-adopted state procedure, counties are allotted one day a month to visit the warehouse in Harrisburg and make selections and purchases.

Stems

County C-D Director Paul M. Crawn said that FCDA has, in the past, allocated such items as communications equipment, generators, first aid supplies, office and headquarters equipment and materials, boats, litters, rescue equipment, and cars, jeeps, tractors and other larger equipment.

These items are available for a five percent handling charge, Crawn said. The percentage is based upon an item's auction value.

Any department of Civil Defense may benefit by such purchases, but such purchases must be made through the political subdivision in which the C-D group is located.
